Is Paris SECRETLY MARRIED?

THE TEEN'S SHOCKING
SOCIAL MEDIA POST HAS FANS WONDERING....

PARIS JACKSON fired up the rumor mill when she took boyfriend Chester Castellaw's last name on Instagram, leading to speculation that the two are secretly married! On Oct. 22, the stunning daughter of departed pop star Michael Jackson unveiled her new handle, Paris Jackson Castellaw — and those close to her could see it coming. "Nobody is surprised that she wants to marry him...she's been crazy about him since day one," dishes a family insider to Star.

However, unless Paris managed to get her legal coguardian TJ Jackson to sign a waiver, she wouldn't be able to marry until her 18th birthday on April, 3, 2016. And while TJ has publicly approved of Chester, who plays soccer for the Real So Cal youth soccer club and has been dating Paris since April, it's unlikely that will happen. "I can't imagine TJ or her grandparents signing off on the marriage," adds the insider. "Especially when she's so young and has gone through some really troubled times."

In 2013 it was reported that Paris had attempted suicide after she had cuts on her wrists and was found with pills in her system. "Paris is definitely the wild card of the family," says the source. "She's always had a rebellious streak, and since dating Chester she's distanced herself from her family." That includes her biological mother, Debbie Rowe, 56, whom she reportedly hasn't seen in more than a year.

But legal concerns aside, it appears that Paris and her beau, 18, have found a way to celebrate their love. "They organized their own secret ceremony and wrote each other special vows. In their hearts, they're married," says the source. "She can't wait until she turns 18 and they can get married for real!" ★

"I approve of him," Paris' coguardian TJ Jackson says of her boyfriend, Chester. "No one's perfect, but he's a good boy. He treats her well. She's happy."

NOT HIS SON?
Paris's older brother, Prince, 18, may have acknowledged that Michael Jackson is not his biological father. After Twitter allegations claimed as much, Prince responded by tweeting, "The blood of the covenant is thicker than the water of the womb..."

Kendra
catfight on *Marriage
Boot Camp*.

KENDRA

STABBED IN THE BACK BY HER OWN MOTHER!

AFTER YEARS OF INSULTS AND BLOWUPS, THE REALITY STAR'S MOM IS PENNING A TELL-ALL ON HER FAMOUS DAUGHTER.

Mothers and daughters don't always see eye to eye, but Kendra Wilkinson's years-long feud with her mom, Patti, has become so heated that Patti's planning a tell-all book to counter her daughter's scathing claims. During a recent episode of Kendra on Top, the former Playboy favorite called her mother a "sadistic abuser," and added: "I feel like I'm being raped every minute with my mom."

Kendra also revealed that as a teen she battled severe depression, attempted suicide and was even institutionalized — and suggested that her mom emotionally abandoned her.

"I was left on my own," Kendra fumed. "I was a young girl, all I wanted was my mom to say, 'I love you, and I'm here for you.' I never got that."

But now her mom will have plenty to say. Patti broke the news about her tell-all in a series of ranting Facebook posts (see box).

Their vendetta began in 2013 after Patti found out through the media that Kendra was pregnant with her second child, and the pair didn't speak for eight months. They buried the hatchet when Kendra discovered her husband, Hank Baskett, had cheated on her with a transsexual model — but sadly, the reunion was short-lived. When Kendra decided to forgive Hank, her mother once again

Patti Wilkinson

Well, the time has come where I can stay quiet anymore. There is only so much a mother can take. I think a book is in order to tell the TRUTH! It will be factual & tell the entire story from MY eyes. Get ready for hearing some things that may take a certain someone down off of her pedestal.

MOMMY

became the enemy. Patti revealed that Kendra's last words to her in October 2013 were "I hope you die."

"It really dug deep," Patti confessed. "It really was hard to take."

A source tells Star that all the drama has been "extremely upsetting" to Patti, but she's still going forward with her poison-pen memoir. "Kendra has been saying some very mean things about her mother, and it hurts Patti," says the source. "It needs to end." ★

MELISSA DROPS 25 LBS. SLIMMING DOWN FOR SANDRA

Melissa McCarthy's is flaunting her 25-lb. weight loss on the set of her new comedy, Boss, but it's not a fitness guru who gets the credit for her svelte new figure — it's her BFF Sandra Bullock! The pair became fast friends when starring together in the 2013 comedy The Heat, and recently Sandra staged a "thintervention" for her overweight friend.

"Six months ago, Sandra sat Mel down and said if she kept gaining weight, she wouldn't see her daughters grow up," revealed a friend. "That was a real wake-up call for Melissa, and she decided to overhaul her entire diet and started doing Pilates and aerobics."

While the slim-down has helped her health, it's also boosted her marriage to fellow actor Ben Falcone. "Ben can't keep his hands off her!" says the source. "Now Melissa is determined to lose another 25 pounds before the New Year!" ★

ROBIN'S BOOZY WORKOUTS

Being a party animal and a gym rat doesn't exactly go hand in hand — just ask Robin Thicke! A tipster at Equinox gym in West Hollywood reports that the "Blurred Lines" crooner routinely turns up for his training sessions "clearly still drunk from the night before." The source sneers, "He comes in stinking of booze and can't even make it through a workout" — but adds that the playboy still feels good enough to turn on the charm for a bevy of fit females.

"Robin gets attention from women, no matter how hung over he looks," laughs the spy. "He always has girls waiting for him outside the locker room!"

How many calories do you burn throwing yourself at a celebrity? ★

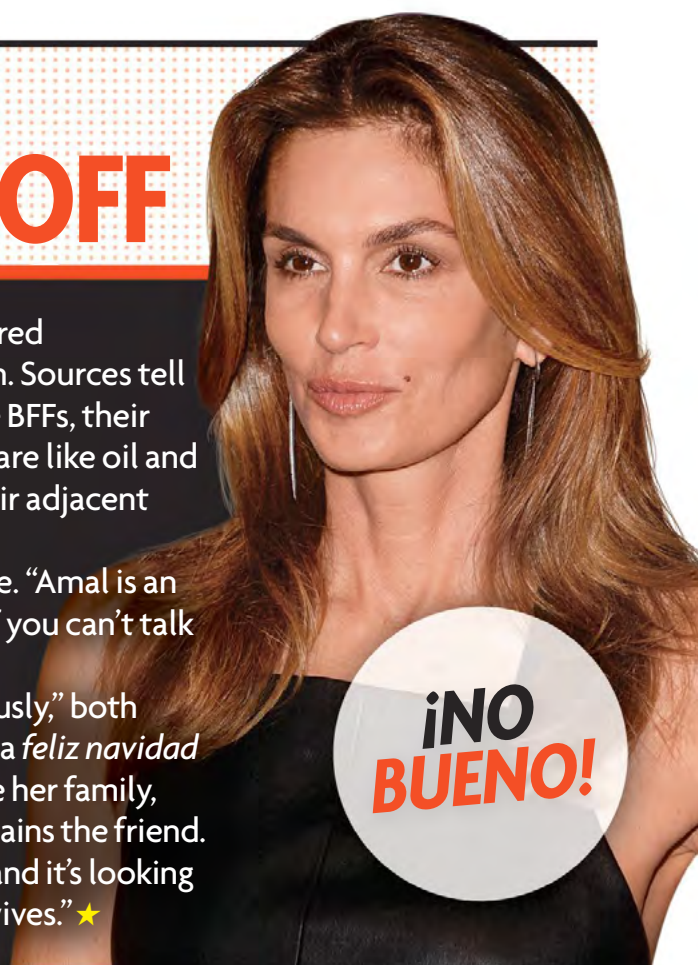

AMAL & CINDY'S MEXICAN STANDOFF

Prepare to be shocked: A supermodel and a high-powered international lawyer don't really have much in common. Sources tell Star that while George Clooney and Rande Gerber are BFFs, their respective wives, Amal Clooney and Cindy Crawford, are like oil and water...and done with the constant couples trips to their adjacent vacation homes in Cabo San Lucas.

"They are completely opposite people," says a source. "Amal is an ice queen and is interested in only one thing: politics. If you can't talk about foreign affairs, she writes you off."

While Cindy has dealt with snooty Amal "very graciously," both women are telling their men that they can forget about a feliz navidad south of the border. "Amal wants to go to London to see her family, and Cindy doesn't want to be around Amal, either," explains the friend. "The boys are sad — they love spending time together, and it's looking like they'll just have to start vacationing without their wives." ★

¡NO

JESSICA: AN HONEST FAILURE?

BEAUTY GETS UGLY!

Jessica Alba was recently faced with an honest — and ugly — truth when her Honest Company Beauty pop-up shop landed with a thud. A source connected with the temporary store at The Grove mall in L.A. says that Jessica flipped out when she saw that sales were flatlining. “Instead of reevaluating her products, she just put all the blame on her employees,” says Star’s retail insider. “She refused to believe that anything was wrong with her brand.”

But customers disagree. While Jessica’s Honest baby products have been a hit, her new beauty and body division is not only a dud, but she’s actually facing a lawsuit over her allegedly ineffective sunscreen. “She needs to take a closer look at what ingredients are in her skin care,” explains the insider, who tested Jessica’s concealer on her ethnic skin. “The cream for darker skin tones feels like a heavy and chalky mask. The packaging might be pretty, but that’s it. It seems like a gimmicky scam!” ★

QUIET ON SET!

JESSIE THE JERK ON SET!

Jesse Eisenberg isn’t quite the laid-back stoner he portrayed in American Ultra. A source working on his new untitled Woody Allen project says Jesse is making the shoot a living hell for crew members.

“Jesse was practicing his lines and a lighting guy dropped a screwdriver and Jesse just lost it,” recalls the insider. “The poor guy wasn’t even anywhere near Jesse, but he flipped out and threatened to have him fired, then mocked the crew guy for his ‘minimum-wage job.’ It was bizarre and uncalled for.”

This isn’t the first time Jesse’s attitude offended someone. In 2013, the actor mocked Univision host Romina Puga while promoting his flop flick Now You See Me. Romina said their interview left her feeling “humiliated” and that Jesse “butchered” her self-esteem. “Jesse may come across as a nice guy to the public, but he’s got quite a temper,” adds the source. “Cast and crew walk on eggshells to avoid setting him off.” ★

The latest hookups, breakups and

"Dean's enjoying his newfound freedom," reveals an insider.

IT'S NO MYSTERY, GIRL!

Tori & Dean

SEPARATE LIVES!

While Tori takes care of their four children, Dean runs off to Canada, where sources tell Star he's living like a bachelor.

WITH reports speculating that Dean McDermott and Tori Spelling are dead broke, it's no wonder the father of five was thrilled to learn he landed the role of small-town police chief, Iain Vaughn, in Chiller TV's new series, Slasher. Even though it meant spending months away filming in Ontario, Canada, Dean felt they had no other choice as mountains of bills — including the $12,000 in child support he owes ex-wife Mary Jo Eustace for their 17-year-old son, Jack — piled up, long overdue.

However, insiders say it's a family decision Tori has come to regret. Down to "only" one full-time nanny, the reality star, 42, has run herself ragged taking care of the couple's four children, Liam, 8, Stella, 7, Hattie, 4, and Finn, 3. "Dean, on the other hand, apparently has plenty of free time," a source tells Star. "He spends his weekends trout fishing and riding motorcycles with his buddies, but he's a no-show at both Hattie's and Finn's birthday parties? It's like Tori has become a single mother."

And to make matters worse, Tori spends most nights worrying that her husband, 48, will cheat again. (Back in 2013, Dean enjoyed a one-night stand with a woman named Emily Goodhand while in Canada to host the cooking show Chopped.) "After everything that they've been through, Tori thought Dean would have been on his best behavior, but nothing's changed," says the insider. "Dean's doing his own thing, checking in with her less and less. He's putting her through hell." ★

Liam GOES FOX HUNTING

Women aren't usually dressed to impress at the gym, but when you're Megan Fox, even with that postworkout flush, you could probably still land a date. Just ask Liam Hemsworth! The Hunger Games hunk, 25, developed a crush after bumping into the actress, 29, a few times at the West Hollywood gym where they share the same trainer. "Liam's shy. He tried to play it cool, but he couldn't stop blushing the first time Megan chatted him up," an insider tells Star. "Of course, she was still with Brian [Austin Green] at the time, so nothing came of it." And now that the actress is unattached, Liam isn't wasting any time. "They made plans to get together soon, maybe even break a sweat with a class," says the source.

However, these two might want to steer clear of the fitness center, since Megan's estranged hubby — with whom she shares sons Noah, 3, and Bodhi, 1 — is known to train there too. "It could get ugly if Liam and Brian met with boxing gloves on," jokes the pal. ★

Leo SCAMS ON KELLY

Well, that certainly didn't take long. Just weeks after reports claimed Leonardo DiCaprio and Sports Illustrated model

Kelly Rohrbach were headed down the aisle, Star has learned the legendary Lothario is up to his old tricks again. "Leo was drinking with an attractive blonde — no surprise there — but she definitely wasn't his girlfriend," says an eyewitness who spotted the actor, 40, enjoying a night out at 1Oak in New York City on Oct. 8. "Leo had his arms wrapped around her, whispering into her ear and sending her into a fit of giggles." As the night progressed, Leo and his lady got even more affectionate, ending the evening with a kiss. While sources claim the Wolf of Wall Street star is happy with his girlfriend, Kelly, 25, a notorious womanizer doesn't turn into a devoted boyfriend overnight. As one pal put it: "He's Leo." ★

Emma & Roberto MORE THAN FRIENDS?

She's bewitched! After a "horrendous" split from rugby player Matt Janney last December, sources tell Star Emma Watson, 25, has moved on with longtime friend Roberto Aguirre, 27. "She wasn't sure she was ready to date again, but Roberto has always been there for her," says a source close to the couple, who first met on the set of Harry Potter and the Goblet of Fire in 2004. "They're best friends." And on Oct. 6, an eyewitness caught the loved-up duo on a lunch date at Los Feliz, Calif., hotspot Little Dom's. "They couldn't take their eyes off each other," says the spy. "At one point, Emma reached across the table to caress Roberto's face. It was adorable." ★

Shia and Mia
hand in hand.

Mia ENABLING SHIA

WHEN Shia LaBeouf broke up with fiancée Mia Goth in Germany two months ago, the actor's friends were relieved to hear that the couple's tumultuous romance was finally finished. Shia threw himself into a rebound relationship with American Honey costar Sasha Lane, and for weeks the troubled star, 29, spent his time hitting the books instead of the bottle. "Mia loved to let loose and drink, which isn't something that Shia should have been around," says a source close to the 29-year-old star, who went to rehab in 2014 for alcohol addiction. "Drinking doesn't help his temper. And no matter how many times he went out and did something stupid, Mia took him back. There weren't any consequences for his actions when he was with her." Which might explain why, after getting arrested for public intoxication in Austin, Texas, on Oct. 9, Shia went running back to Mia, 22, even returning the engagement ring he proposed with earlier this year. "Shia says he can't live without her," says the source, "but the truth is, he shouldn't be anywhere near her. They're toxic together." ★

Amanda LEANING ON HER EX

Most people surround themselves with friends and family after a bad breakup, but sources say Amanda Seyfried has turned to ex Dominic Cooper instead — much to the dismay of his girlfriend, Ruth Negga. "Dominic's been a shoulder to cry on for Amanda since she split from Justin [Long]," an insider tells Star. "Ruth isn't exactly comfortable with the amount of time these two spend talking every day, but she also knows there's no point in picking a fight."

In fact, Amanda, 29, warned Dominic's future beloveds of her hold on the 37-year-old British actor. "He'll always be in my life, regardless of what his girlfriends or future wife think," she bragged in a interview given after the two split in 2010 when Dominic was caught making out with Ruth, 32, in a rehearsal room at London's National Theatre. "Ruth pretends she's fine with them being friends," says the source, "but she hopes Amanda finds another boyfriend — and quick — because she's tired of sharing hers." ★

Adrienne Maloof's MYSTERY MAN

It's been almost a year since Adrienne Maloof broke up with beau Jacob Busch, 25, and the former RHOAH star is finally dipping back into the dating pool. An eyewitness spotted the divorcée, 54, enjoying a romantic meal with a more "age-appropriate" man at the Sunset Tower hotel in Beverly Hills on Sept. 30. "They took a seat at the bar. It was dark, but Adrienne didn't care who saw them," spills the spy. "She couldn't keep her hands off him! She was very affectionate, massaging his neck." Adrienne could have used her fame to snag a table, but they waited instead. "She was more than happy to prolong the date," says the source. ★

Working It Out

Ben and Jen looked happy and relaxed as they left couples therapy together in September. Sources say counseling has done wonders for their relationship.

Ben & Jen Back Together

PUTTING THE DIVORCE ANNOUNCEMENT AND CHEATING RUMORS BEHIND THEM, BEN AFFLECK AND JENNIFER GARNER ARE PICKING UP THE PIECES OF THEIR BROKEN MARRIAGE — AND STARTING A FRESH, ROMANTIC CHAPTER IN THEIR RELATIONSHIP.

FIRST!

Team Spirit

Tensions between Jen and Ben were palpable in the early days after their split, but they've continued to spend time together for their kids. "Seeing how committed Ben still is to their family has made Jen appreciate him more," says a pal. "She's always telling him he's a fantastic dad."

MOVING ON

The estranged couple recently put their home of six years — a five-bedroom, eight-bath Pacific Palisades, Calif., mansion — on the market for $45 million. "Jen associates that house with so many fights and bad memories," says a family source. "That's why they're selling it. She says if they're going to make their marriage work, they need a fresh start in a new home where they can be a family again."

IN the four months since they announced their separation, Ben Affleck and Jennifer Garner have frequently stepped out together — with and without their children but always, it seems, with a smile on their faces. In fact, the estranged couple have appeared happier together in recent weeks than they have in years.

Now sources close to the pair are saying that Ben and Jen's relationship has grown so strong, they're even talking about giving their marriage a second chance!

"Jen has realized that she's never going to find anyone as great as Ben," reveals a family insider. "Sure, he has his issues, but she says he's still the kindest, smartest man she's ever met, and she made a big mistake in letting him go."

As for the Batman v. Superman star, "He's been working hard to win Jen back, but he was still shocked when she told him she wanted to give it another shot," the insider adds. "It finally seems like they both really want this marriage to work."

THE TRUTH COMES OUT

Ben and Jen's unlikely reconciliation came, in large part, thanks to couples therapy, which they pursued after their split in an effort to make their divorce more amicable. While the duo had undergone counseling on and off many times throughout their 10-year union, the source says that Ben, 43, hadn't been entirely open and honest with his wife during their sessions — until now. "Now that they no longer live together, Ben has finally been able to vent his true feelings and frustrations," the insider explains. "He's not scared to say what he really thinks, and Jen is actually listening."

In recent years, Ben — who spent time in rehab in 2001 for alcohol abuse — seemed to be spending more time gambling, and Jen, 43, would often get annoyed when he'd indulge his vices. "She'd scold him like a child whenever he had a beer, or make him feel bad for having a night out with the boys," the insider says. "It made him feel like he was always walking on eggshells around her, and he started to resent her for not letting him do what he wanted. He told her that in therapy." He also made it clear, according to the source, that he will never fully stop gambling, but he will pull back on it for her and their family.

Another issue in their marriage was his reported infidelity. In June, around the time they announced their plans to divorce, reports surfaced that Ben had carried on an affair with one of their children's nannies, ▸

THE NANNY WANTS HIM BACK!

Their alleged fling made headlines in July, but Ben quickly cut off ties with Christine Ouzounian, his kids' former nanny, to protect his family. Still, that hasn't stopped the 28-year-old from trying to win back the Oscar winner. "She recently texted Ben and asked if she could see him again, but he told her he was getting back with Jen," reveals a source close to the nanny. "Christine couldn't believe it. She smirked and said, 'Jen's a fool. Ben still loves me.'"

"She can't understand how Jen could ever trust Ben again, after knowing about everything that went down between them," the source adds. "But she says it's his loss."

ABSENCE MAKES THE HEART GROW FONDER

While their separation has helped Ben to be more honest with Jennifer, it's also made Jen enjoy her husband's company again. The exes have continued to spend time together, usually once or twice a week, to give their kids — Violet, 9, Seraphina, 6, and Samuel, 3 — a sense of stability during this transitional time. They regularly attend church together as a family, often following that up with trips to the farmers' market, but they've also taken their children to school together — and even gone out to dinner without the Christine Ouzounian. While he denied the allegations, the rumors sent Jennifer into a tailspin of shock and shame. But now, thanks to their counseling sessions, she has chosen to believe that her husband didn't cheat on her. "That meant a lot to Ben," the insider says. "And although he still swears nothing ever happened with Christine, he accepts his part in allowing the rumors to start."

Jen's trust also prompted Ben to do something that ultimately laid the groundwork for their reconciliation. "He sat her down and apologized for everything he's put her through over the years. He acknowledged that she's always had to deal with the fallout of his selfishness, and he promised to try harder to be a better man," the insider reveals. "Jennifer was not expecting such an open and honest apology from Ben — it made her very emotional. She's been waiting years to hear that from him."

His heartfelt confessions in therapy ended up opening Jen's eyes to the fact that she too created some of the problems in their marriage. "That's why she decided to forgive Ben," the source adds, "and give their marriage another chance."

Hiding Out

Toward the end of their marriage, notorious gambler Ben was spending more and more time in casinos. "Recently, he confessed to Jen that the reason he buried his head in booze and poker was because he was unhappy at home," the insider reveals.

kids. "Spending time together, without the pressures of their old life, has made Ben and Jennifer remember how much fun they used to have," the insider says. "They like being a unit, and they've rekindled some of their old spark."

Of course, they've both experimented with single life too. Ben was spotted with a mysterious blonde woman at the Beverly Hills Hotel on Sept. 18, but sources say he ended that flirtation as soon as Jen told him she wanted to get back together.

Jen also went out with another man — a producer — but her date just made her miss her husband more. "It was a bust. All this producer did was talk about his work, and then he made an awkward move on her at the end of the night, which she didn't appreciate," the insider says. "It made her see that the grass isn't greener on the other side. And she says she's too old to go through the dating mill again."

MAKING CHANGES

In her efforts to get their marriage back on track, Jennifer is making a few sacrifices. "She's agreed to loosen her grip on Ben and give him more freedom to be the man he wants to be," the source

VANESSA & KOBE BRYANT

NBA star Kobe and his wife of 14 years have had their share of ups and downs, including rumors of his infidelity, but he's managed to smooth things over by buying her expensive jewelry. Still, in 2011, Vanessa filed for divorce — and with no prenup, she stood to make $75 million off the split. They reconciled a year later.

PINK & CAREY HART

Originally married in 2006, the “Raise Your Glass” singer and her motocross racer hubby filed for divorce two years later — but they never signed the papers. By 2009, they were back together, and the couple — parents of 4-year-old Willow — are still going strong today.

TISH & BILLY RAY CYRUS

Miley's mom and dad attempted to split twice: First, Billy Ray filed for divorce in 2010, only to withdraw his petition five months later. Then, in 2013, Tish pulled the plug again. But within weeks, they were back on. “We both woke up and realized we love each other,” they said, crediting couples therapy with saving their 22-year marriage.

ELIZABETH TAYLOR & RICHARD BURTON

Hollywood's most legendary lovers, Liz and Dick, first wed in 1964. He famously showered her with fabulous jewels for 10 years — until he cheated and they divorced. They reunited 18 months later and soon remarried, but the tempestuous duo split for good in 1976.

says. “And she's been saying she wants to have another baby with him!”

That represents a big change of heart for the actress. After Samuel was born, in 2012, Jennifer admitted that Ben wanted a fourth child, but as she put it, “that would be a pretty uphill battle with me.” Now, however, she's feeling nostalgic for the intimacy she and her husband once shared. “She'll pretty much do whatever it takes to get him back now,” the insider says. “And if they can reignite the passion in their relationship, maybe Ben won't get the urge to find happiness elsewhere.”

In fact, Jen is so serious about expanding their family that she and Ben even told Violet, Seraphina and Samuel about their baby plans! “They gathered the kids and promised they were trying to give them another sibling,” the source reveals.

Ben is also determined to change. Insiders say that, in addition to trying to act less selfish, he's promised to be “more present” in their interactions with each other and with her family. Jennifer had previously accused Ben of being antisocial around her loved ones.

In a bid to make Ben notice her again, Jen has been working out constantly. “She feels really good about her body at the moment,” says a pal. “Ben's told her how great she looks, and that's boosted her confidence.”

If they keep working at their relationship the way they have been, perhaps Ben and Jennifer can, indeed, save their marriage. And because they haven't officially filed divorce papers yet, they have no legal obstacles standing in the way of a reconciliation. “It's not going to be easy, especially given Ben's reputation as a ladies' man, but Jen feels she owes it to her family to try again,” the insider says. “He's the father of her children, and at the end of the day, she still loves him.” ★

Tom Cruise

"The buzz is, they're calling Tom the Supreme Father now, and that he'll soon take over leadership from David Miscavige," reveals a source.

It wasn't easy for Leah Remini to leave the Church of Scientology. She was raised in its enclaves and knew her departure wouldn't sit well with its upper echelons. But to save her own child from further entanglement, Leah broke free in 2013. "I didn't want to raise my daughter in the church because the church becomes your mother, your father, your everything," she said. Leah endured a storm of repercussions and was deemed a Suppressive Person — the worst condemnation the church can level. But now she's striking back with Troublemaker: Surviving Hollywood and Scientology, a scathing memoir about the religion's ruthless ways that's sure to call to task celebrity practitioners Tom Cruise, John Travolta and Kirstie Alley.

"Leah will expose the ugliest corners of Scientology — things no one has spoken of yet," a source close to the

LOSING HER RELIGION

Brooklyn-born Leah, 45, was baptized a Catholic but became a Scientologist at age 9 when her mother joined. She remained a member for 30 years — and during her peak of fame with TV's King of Queens enjoyed the level of status given to high-ranking celebs. However, in 2006, at the wedding of Tom Cruise and Katie Holmes, Leah was troubled by the notable absence of her good friend Shelly Miscavige, wife of the church's leader, David Miscavige.

When, in typically outspoken style, Leah asked where Shelly was, she was chastised by church higher-ups and forced to undergo interrogations and behavior modification known as Security Checking. "Leah realized how dangerous these people could be, but she was genuinely afraid for Shelly," her friend tells Star. Security Checking went on unabated for months, and Leah was then billed $300,000 for the "treatment"! In August 2013, when Shelly still failed to surface, Leah even filed a missing persons report, which was ultimately deemed "unfounded" by police.

That doesn't surprise ex-Scientologist Nora Crest. "Scientology has a policy, called Safe Pointing, that gets them into the good graces of city leadership," she explains. "It has the LAPD in its pocket."

By then Leah had already renounced her religion — loudly. "No one is going to tell me how I need to think; no one is going

WHAT WILL SHE SPILL?

Leah expects the church to come down hard on her when Troublemaker bows on Nov. 3 — if Kirstie Alley's behavior is any indication. Upon Leah's departure, Kirstie called her an "enemy" and a "bigot." After all, Leah was privy to so much "crazy s" about high-profile devotees, she may speak to the double standard that prevails in Scientology. For instance, when Kirstie kissed former Scientology spokesperson and married man Tommy Davis in front of paparazzi in Italy, it was he who was "slut-shamed" in front of clergy and forced to do torturous menial labor for weeks.

Leah may even shed light on what Nora Crest describes as sexual abuse by church members. "I know of two 15-year-old girls who were raped by 50-year-old men," she says, adding that Leah may reveal details about the suspicious deaths of church members who were discouraged from getting proper medical care.

Finally, since "Leah still secretly talks to Scientologists, she's heard about the internal battle that's building between David Miscavige and Tom Cruise, who's being groomed to take over," her friend says. "Leah's book will blow the lid off the church," states Nora Crest. "She knows everyone."

For years, Leah was afraid of speaking out against Scientology. Now the church has good reason to fear her. ★

BLINDSPOT STAR IS SHE A HON

BREAKOUT TV BEAUTY JAIMIE ALEXANDER FILMED A MOVIE SEX SCENE WITH NEW FIANCÉ PETER FACINELLI — WHILE HE WAS MARRIED TO JENNIE GARTH.

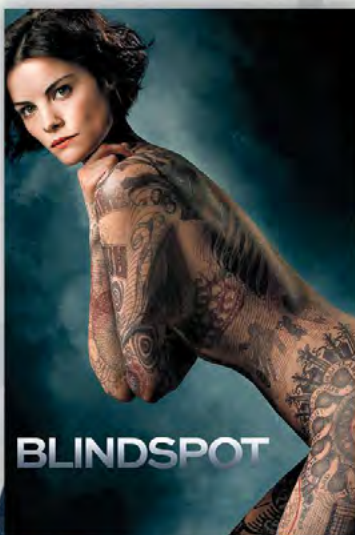

It was one of the more memorable premieres in TV history. NBC's smash new drama series, Blindspot, opened with its central character, a mysterious woman dubbed Jane Doe, crawling naked out of a duffel bag in the middle of NYC's Times Square with no memory of who she is or how she got there — and with her body covered in cryptic tattoos that may hold intricate clues to a massive criminal conspiracy.

It's the latest showbiz success for series star Jaimie Alexander, who appeared as sultry female warrior Sif in the two recent Thor movie blockbusters. Her personal life seems to be coming up roses as well, with the announcement earlier this year that she and her boyfriend, former Twilight star Peter Facinelli, had become engaged. But to some, the question of whether the roots of Jaimie and Peter's romance took hold while he was still married to his former wife, Beverly Hills, 90210 favorite Jennie Garth, is still as enigmatic as Jane Doe's body graphics.

REEL LIFE OR REAL LIFE?

In July 2010, the independent movie Loosies, starring Peter, 41 (who also produced and cowrote the project), began a month of filming in Rhode Island. He played a pickpocket whose life changes after he discovers that he had impregnated a woman — played by Jaimie, 31 — during a one-night stand. At the time, Peter had been married to Jennie, 43, for nine and a half years.

"Peter had a hand in the casting and was present when Jaimie auditioned

Fractured Family

Peter and his then wife, Jennie Garth, in December 2010, with daughters (from left) Luca, now 18, Lola, 12, and Fiona, 9.

THEIR FIRST (AND LUST) PROJECT

Peter and Jaimie first met when she was cast in the low-budget film Loosies, which he starred in, cowrote and produced. Their characters shared a steamy sex scene (below) in the movie, which was shot in July 2010. Peter and wife Jennie separated 17 months later.

earlier in L.A.," a production insider tells Star. "Something about her must have caught his eye, since she got the part." The script called for a sex scene between Peter and Jaimie, and the insider adds, "The excellent chemistry between them helped make it believable." That bond apparently carried over into the following year, because Jaimie appeared on three episodes of the edgy Showtime series Nurse Jackie, in which Peter costars as Dr. Fitch Cooper, in the spring of 2011.

UNHAPPY NEW YEAR

Jennie's friends were shocked after Peter filed for divorce in L.A. in March 2012 (their listed date of separation was Jan. 1). "Everyone close to her was blindsided by their breakup," a source tells Star, and Jennie herself later revealed: "I don't know if I'm angry at myself for not being enough or angry at [Peter] for not considering me to be enough."

Jennie's anger turned to bitter pain that November after Peter and Jaimie went public with their new love for the first time, photographed holding hands while strolling in NYC. Jaimie soon claimed that she'd "been single for a very long time and he was going through a lot. We sort of bonded." But her statement did little to soothe Jennie, who admitted shortly after: "I think there will come a time when it won't sting so bad...but I'm not quite there yet."

TIMING IS EVERYTHING

The source says that Jennie's closest pals "have wondered whether Peter had fallen for Jaimie on the set of Loosies, given that they played lovers and had a sex scene in the movie — then ended up together after he divorced Jennie."

While a rep for Peter tells Star that there "was no relationship during the filming," and adds that Peter and Jennie previously released a joint statement saying there were "no third parties involved" in their split, the Loosies production insider tells Star: "Who can say what the state of Peter and Jennie's marriage was when he was making the film? He and Jaimie are together now, which kind of speaks for itself. In that respect, good for them that they were able to find each other." ★

HER NAME BEFORE FAME

Jaimie was known by her real last name of Tarbush while growing up in Grapevine, Texas. She attended nearby Colleyville Heritage High School, where she made the wrestling team and "got kicked out of drama class because I didn't know how to sing," she recalls. Jaimie moved to L.A. after graduating in 2002.

KHLOÉ KARDASHIAN offers sage relationship advice in her upcoming book, Strong Looks Better Naked: “The thing is, you can’t control other people, and you can’t control the outcome of situations. And if you think you can, you will soon discover that you are sadly mistaken,” writes the 31-year-old reality star. But she may be better at giving that advice than following it.

Less than a week after her estranged husband, Lamar Odom, emerged from a coma following a drug- and alcohol-fueled bender at a Nevada brothel, the former flames have called off their impending divorce — a decision likely rooted in emotion that’s leaving her friends and family shocked and confused. “Khloé can’t see the big picture at this point — the only thing she’s focused on is keeping Lamar close by. But the problems that caused their marriage to crumble — the drugs, the cheating — will still be there after he recovers,” an insider tells Star. “And Khloé will discover that being Lamar’s nurse is going to get old really fast.”

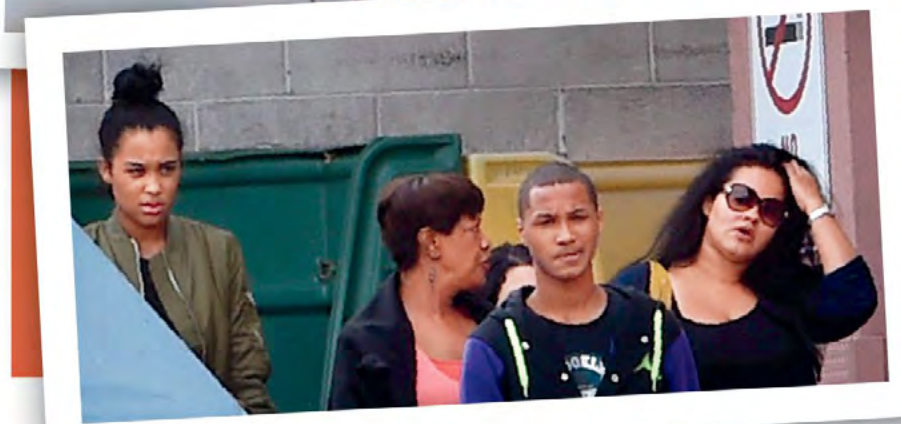

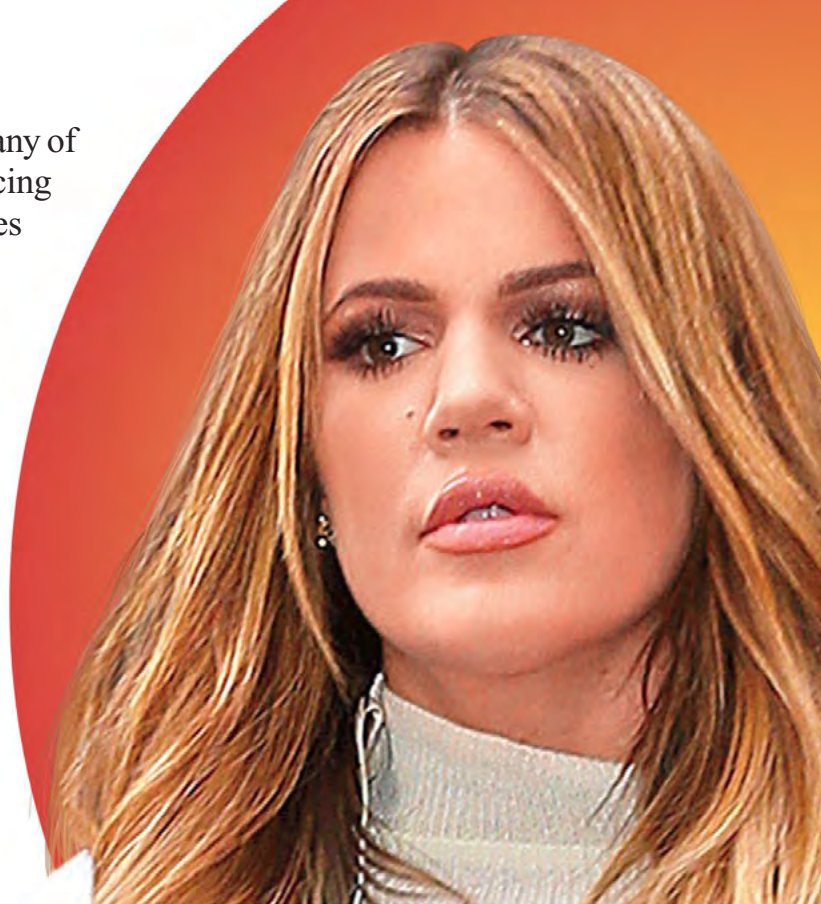

PLAYING NURSE

On Oct. 19, the youngest Kardashian arranged for Lamar, 35, to be airlifted from Sunrise Hospital in Las Vegas (the city where he’s been living) to Cedars-Sinai in Los Angeles. Pals claim that when and if he’s released from the hospital, she plans to move him into her Calabasas, Calif., home. But at this point, the extent of his physical damage is still undetermined. Although Lamar has shown marked improvement in many of his vital organs, he’s still experiencing acute kidney failure, which requires six hours of dialysis a day — and, most likely, a transplant. It’s also unclear if he suffered permanent brain damage as a result of his multiple strokes. “Khloé is determined to stick by him for the long haul, even if that means months in the hospital, years of rehabilitation and, possibly, limited physical and mental recovery,” reveals the source. “But she doesn’t really know what that means. It means he could be completely dependent on her, like a child.”

Lamar UNDER KHLOÉ KONT

BECOMING A PARENTAL GATEKEEPER?

Contrary to widespread reports, Khloé did not fly Lamar’s ex-girlfriend, Liza Morales (lower left, hand in her hair) and their two children — Destiny, 17, and Lamar Jr., 13 — to be at his bedside following his overdose. Instead, their travel arrangements were arranged by the athlete’s business manager — and put on Lamar’s tab. In fact, a source close to Lamar’s ex says that Khloé has been an obstacle when it comes to his other family. “Khloé did all she could to prevent his kids from being in his hospital room, even though her entire family has been allowed as much time as they wanted,” explains the source. “Khloé’s best friend, Malika, has been in the room more than his kids! She gave his kids three 15-minute visits, and she made sure she was there the whole time!” According to the source, at one point Khloé even lied to Lamar’s children. “She told them he still had three more days in the Las Vegas hospital. They found out he was being flown out by helicopter to L.A. as he was en route!”

a full recovery for Lamar — she'll still be married to a drug addict who has cheated on her with many women.

Chris Rock summed up the paradox Khloé's put herself in with a humorous tweet on Oct. 22: "Here's to Lamar Odom for being the first guy in history to have coke and hookers save his marriage."

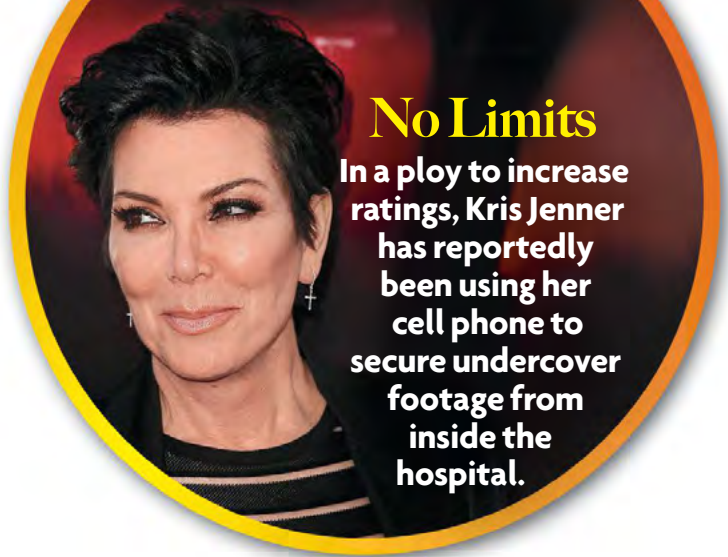

WILL SHE QUIT THE SHOW?

Part of helping Lamar beat his addictions may require a radical change on Khloé's part. As has been widely reported,

Lamar's frustration with being a subject on KUWTK was a major trigger that led to his overdose. If Khloé's really committed to helping him, it would obviously be in his best interests to not only After suffering multiple strokes and organ failures, the athlete will need to endure months of rehab and daily dialysis treatments.

No Limits

In a ploy to increase ratings, Kris Jenner has reportedly been using her cell phone to secure undercover footage from inside the hospital.

remain off-camera but to not even be a subject of discussion on the show. But Kris Jenner may have other ideas. "Kris' wheels are already turning! She wants Khloé and Lamar's drama to be the centerpiece of next season," dishes the insider, noting that the momager even had E! camera crews stationed outside the hospital to capture "sympathetic" shots of the family coming and going from the premises.

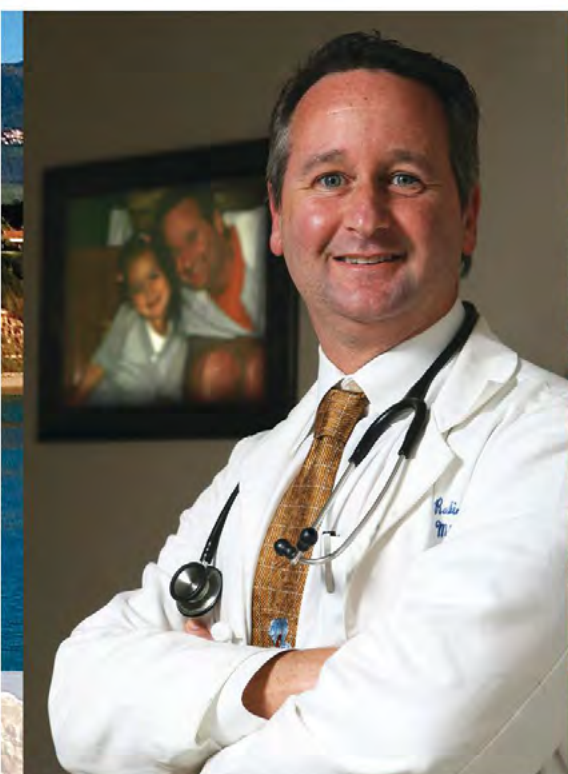

Although Khloé disagrees with her mother's manipulative plan to boost ratings, the constant pressure to "keep the brand afloat" may mean that if Lamar wants to stay with Khloé, he'll have to return as a cast member — or at least a plotline.

The sad irony, of course, is that after years of trying to keep tabs on Lamar — including hiring private detectives to track down and intimidate his mistresses — Khloé now seems to have him, at tremendous cost, completely under her control. And barring a miraculous recovery, he will remain in that position for some time.

"Khloé never wanted to get him back like this," says the friend. "But she's hoping the fact that he almost died has changed him for good." ★

GETTING

Holding Her Up

Upset by photos of Joel out with a stranger, Nicole “had to get away!” says a source. In Cabo, she sought solace in the arms of her friends.

nicolerichie Girls Trip! These fools/ #pearlsofmylife make me cry from laughter, and laugh in times of sadness. They're the first ones to tell me when I'm being an idiot, and cheer me on every single day.

He Nags, She Nags

“Joel says Nicole sets a bad example for the kids by not eating properly, and she accuses him of being a bad father because of his drinking,” says a source.

Nicole & Joel

TROUBLE IN PARADISE!

AFTER CATCHING JOEL MADDEN WITH ANOTHER WOMAN, NICOLE RICHIE FLEES WITH FRIENDS TO ESCAPE HER CRUMBLING MARRIAGE.

FOR years, Nicole Richie has been riddled with doubt about husband Joel Madden's fidelity. As a friend puts it: “Nicole is convinced he has cheated on her, and he flat out denies it and accuses her of being paranoid.” So when she received photos of Joel out with another woman (see sidebar), it seemed that she finally had proof. A confrontation ensued, and when Nicole failed to get a full confession from Joel, she desperately rang her gal pals.

“Nicole has been leaning on her friends a lot, calling them at 3 a.m. when she’s miserable about the rumors of Joel’s cheating,” says a source close to the couple. This time, she wasn’t content to suffer at home; she decided to make for Cabo San Lucas and take a bevy of buddies along to lend support. Yet sun and solace may not be enough — Joel’s mystery date has put Nicole at the end of her rope. “Things have never been this bad,” the insider says. “Friends will be very surprised if they make it another year.”

HE'S STEPPING OUT

On paper, it appeared to be a perfect match between the daughter of music icon Lionel Richie and the lead singer of

JOEL'S SECRET LUNCH DATE

On Oct. 14, Joel was snapped having lunch with this mystery blonde in Beverly Hills. Though the restaurant, Sugarfish, is a pricey hotspot, the duo dressed down in low-key denim and big, dark shades. "When Nicole saw the photos, she was in complete shock, but she called Joel on it," says a source close to the star. "He claimed she was just a friend, but Nicole didn't buy it, saying that if the girl was a friend, why did he keep the meeting a secret?"

A HOT MEAL?

chart-topping band Good Charlotte. But trust issues have consistently plagued the couple, even after their children, Harlow, 7, and Sparrow, 6, came along. And the rumors have continued to swirl since their 2010 wedding. Joel's tendency to party like the rock star he is hasn't helped. "She's had an issue with his drinking for a long time," the insider says. "When he goes out and stays out, it fuels her fears that he's fooling around."

Throughout last spring and summer, Nicole's concerns seemed to have some foundation. Joel was reportedly texting back and forth with ex-girlfriend Hilary Duff, and in June he was caught flirting heavily with Bachelorette beauty Kaitlyn Bristowe. Then there's bisexual singer Jessie J, Joel's fellow coach on the Australian version of The Voice, where there's "pure sexual tension behind the scenes," claims a source.

SHE'S GETTING REAL

As time goes on, it becomes more and more obvious that Nicole, 34, and Joel, 36, are a total mismatch. "Joel starts drinking during the day, keeps going through the night and wakes up with horrendous hangovers that put him in a permanent bad mood," the source reveals. "Nicole nags at him to cut down and take care of himself, but he bites back, saying she's the one who's neglecting her health and telling her to gain some weight." (At her lowest, the 5'1" Nicole plummeted to 85 lbs.)

"They can't seem to have a simple conversation without it becoming accusations and ugliness," their intimate shares. "Nicole even stopped wearing her wedding ring." She's also making discreet inquiries about divorce attorneys. "She has quietly reached out to a few people for recommendations, but at this point it's just to see what her options are," the insider explains. "She feels like she needs to put the children first, but she's beginning to realize that it's definitely not good for them to be in an environment where their parents can't be civil to each other. She doesn't want to walk away from her marriage, but if she has to, she will." ★

This subtle version of the popular trend that showed a clear line of demarcation between lighter ends and darker roots is a more natural progression of color. “It’s flattering because you get the illuminating effects of light hair while the darkness at the roots prevents you from looking washed out,” says Kyle. Though you’ll mane-tain your natural base, it’s important to wash with a sulfate-free shampoo that’s gentle enough for the lighter ends. “This part of our strands is always the driest and most fragile, so any lightening process will make them even more frazzled. Apply an oil from midshaft to ends to replenish moisture.”

MULTITONAL HIGHLIGHTS

“Adding warm tones to hair is great for fall because they replace that glow from our skin that we had in the summer” notes Kyle. “They also bring richness and dimension to hair with a cooler, ashy-blonde base. Since we lose color molecules every time we wash our hair, skipping days between shampoos can help to prevent fading.” To keep warm shades from turning brassy, apply an at-home golden gloss once a week.

OVERGROWN ROOTS

Long gone are the days when letting your roots show was considered a hairy situation.

"This look is overgrown enough that you know it's intentional; it creates a nice contrast between hair and skin" Kyle explains. But when light shades grow dull, the contrast can be too severe. "Washing with a violet-based shampoo will neutralize the blonde, keeping it bright and vibrant." A pigment-protecting treatment can also boost shine and help color last longer.

POWER ARMS Now that little black dress season is in full swing, get ready to flaunt those toned triceps and sexy shoulders! If you feel like your arms have lost their sculpt, you are not alone. As we age, the muscles in the backs of the arms are some of the first to go. Skin starts to lose elasticity, which creates a saggy look. Fortunately, there are ways to combat this situation by conditioning your arms. It won't take long to shape up the arms and rock any short-sleeve LBD!

How it works: Perform three sets of 20 reps. Aim to do this routine three days per week.

Equipment Required: Five-pound weights

TRICEPS EXTENSION

Step 1 Stand with feet hip-width apart, chest up and core engaged. Hold one weight directly overhead; bend elbows and lower weight toward the back of your neck. Keep elbows pointed straight up the entire time.
Step 2 Extend arms back to straight, engaging the triceps as you lift. Continue to lift and lower the weight, keeping torso still and knees slightly bent.

EXTERNAL ROTATIONS

Step 1 Hold weights together at hip height and bring elbows close to your sides. Press weights out to each side until your arms form 90-degree angles.
Step 2 Pull weights back together while keeping arms parallel with the floor. Continue to draw weights in at out at a steady pace.

SHOULDER PRESS

Step 1 Stand with feet together, and torso straight. Hold weights at shoulder height, elbows out so that arms form a goalpost shape.
Step 2 Press weights directly overhead, bringing them together at the top. Keep wrists facing forward and chin parallel with the ground to avoid straining your neck. Lower weights back down to goalpost position and repeat the movement.

Q&A with Judge Jeanine Pirro

The Fox News host's new book details her dogged pursuit of a notorious suspected killer.

IN the explosive final seconds of the riveting HBO docuseries The Jinx, eccentric real estate heir Robert Durst seemingly confessed to murdering three people. But Jeanine Pirro, former Westchester, N.Y., district attorney and the host of the hit Fox News show Justice with Judge Jeanine, wasn't the least bit surprised. Convinced Durst had killed his wife, Kathleen, who'd disappeared in 1982, Jeanine reopened the case in 2000 but couldn't get the evidence to prove it. (Durst would soon, however, be implicated in the deaths of two more people.) And in Jeanine's thrilling new book, He Killed Them All, she traces her relentless pursuit of Durst—who was finally arrested the night The Jinx finale aired in connection with the murder of his friend Susan Berman—and sheds new light on how he managed to avoid prosecution on three separate occasions.

What made you reopen Kathie Durst's case?

I've been in law enforcement for 30 years as a prosecutor, judge and district attorney, and some cases never leave you.

This was one of them. She was someone I related to. Kathie was in medical school, fighting to become a doctor at a time when women were not doctors. I was very determined to find out what happened to her.

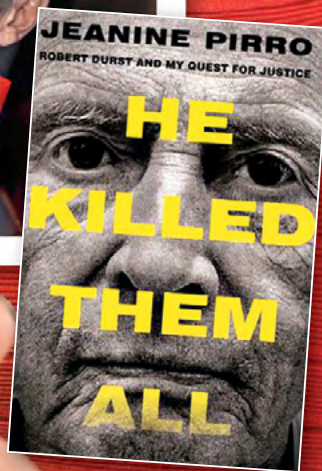

How did Durst initially avoid prosecution?

The original case was wanting, to be kind. The NYPD said that she ran off with another man.

There was no evidence of that, and when we found out Durst beat his wife, we ran with it. We were about to speak to Susan Berman in 2000 when she was murdered.

How satisfying was Durst's confession in The Jinx?

I didn't need The Jinx to vindicate me, but let me tell you something: My life has been about the underdog. My chosen field is about settling scores. Kathie Durst's score was not settled. I always knew in my gut what happened. For some reason—money, power, corruption—he was able to mislead everyone. He was not able to mislead me. ★

"For the first time in his life, he was confronted with a woman who had power," Jeanine explains about her battle with Durst, which she writes about in detail in her book He Killed Them All.

Getting On

Premieres Sunday, Nov. 8, at 10PM on HBO

In its third and final season, this bitterly funny comedy set in the extended-care wing of a struggling hospital finds each of its central characters dealing with life-altering developments. Dr. James (Laurie Metcalf) tries to save her professional career after an ethics scandal; nurse Dawn (Alex Borstein) is confronting a potentially fatal health problem; and nurse DiDi (Niecy Nash) faces family issues as hospital politics get in the way of the quality of care. Alternately dark and naughty, the dry humor offers laugh-out-loud moments in the midst of comic chaos.

Premieres Sunday, Nov. 8, at 9PM on TNT

This action-drama may be the silliest new show in ages. Sharon Stone plays Vice President Maccabee, whose duties include supervising her own personal superspy. In other words, when the President (John Shea) faces an international crisis and says, "There's nothing we can do," he's actually winking at Maccabee, who then turns loose her operative, Agent X (Jeff Hephner), to handle the problem. We're meant to believe that this is not only standard procedure but that the VP and her chief butler (Gerald McRaney) can sit in her office and watch Agent X's adventures on a special channel and direct him in real time. It's not quite a spoof — nor is it particularly exciting or involving. The cast is made up of attractive, likable people, but this series is strictly for tame-action lovers who are willing to suspend plenty of disbelief.

The Leisure Class

Premieres Monday, Nov. 2, at 10PM on HBO

This made-for-TV movie was produced during this season of Project Greenlight, the Ben Affleck and Matt Damon reality series about discovering new filmmaking talent. It's a lame comedy-drama that stars Ed Weeks as William, the shady fiancé of rich political star Fiona (Bridget Regan), who hopes to follow in the footsteps of her senator father (Bruce Davison). But when William's ne'er-do-well brother (Tom Bell) shows up, threatening to spill the beans about William's sordid past, everything quickly and rather obviously goes wrong. Set on the weekend of Fiona and William's wedding, it's talky and tedious, with way too many scenes of characters sitting around, telling stories about their past. If this was the best script and director available for Project Greenlight, the producers may have been looking in the wrong pile.

Oscar winner Kate Hudson is writing a self-help book that she teases will be about "throwing perfection out the window" — which may explain some of her film choices.

Star Wars: The Force Awakens doesn't open until Dec. 18, but presales have already shattered box-office advance-sales records.

Magicians, comedians and dog acts, watch out: Simon Cowell, whose blunt barbs made American Idol must-see TV, will replace judge Howard Stern on the next season of America's Got Talent.

Billy Bob Thornton and Sandra Bullock are opposing political consultants who take their trade to South America.

M MOVIES

Our Brand Is Crisis

Stars Sandra Bullock, Billy Bob Thornton, Joaquim de Almeida

Story An American political consultant (Bullock) takes over a South American campaign in this attempt at a zany political comedy that falls short. Her name is “Calamity” Jane Bodine, and she has given up the world of politics — until she gets offered a chance to shape the future of an impoverished country’s presidential election by helping a former president (de Almeida) struggling to win. But once she starts using fear and half-truths to turn the campaign around, she has second thoughts — and she’s competing with an old rival (Thornton) who knows how to push her buttons. It’s a fictionalized version of actual events but too jokey for its own good and too Hollywood in its moralizing and plotting. While Bullock’s scenes with Thornton pop with edgy laughter, she relies too much on the same quirky shtick she brings to her lesser romantic comedies.

Verdict A comedy you won’t vote for.

GORDON RAMSAY
Turns 49 on Nov. 8

SCORPIO OCT. 23–NOV. 21

An opportunity to speak the truth can be a blessing in disguise; be confident. A social event will put you in touch with someone who captures both your attention and your heart.

SAGITTARIUS

NOV. 22–DEC. 21

Your career is on fire. Pay attention to your intuition and move forward without looking back. Your family affairs look up now too; make time to mend fences.

CAPRICORN

DEC. 22–JAN. 19

Life is full of choices, but don't make too many compromises. Energy from Venus and Mars gives you motivation to make your dreams a reality. Climb the ladder of success — don't settle for less.

AQUARIUS

JAN. 20–FEB. 18

Money is on your mind with a new development helping you financially. Don't sit back and wait for someone to step up; make it happen. This is a positive time for your career.

PISCES

FEB. 19–MARCH 20

If in a relationship, you can move love to the next stage; singles may connect with someone amazing. Travel is possible, and a creative opportunity is on the horizon.

ARIES

MARCH 21–APRIL 19

Don't put all your energy into your career; take care of your health and happiness. To meet someone special, make sure your appearance is polished.

TAURUS

APRIL 20–MAY 20

You could meet the love of your life — but prepare to love him or her without conditions. A discussion with a friend opens the door to set things right.

GEMINI

MAY 21–JUNE 20

Family is your first priority. You can give your opinion, but don't expect others to act on your advice. Focus on solutions and positive outcomes, not the negative. Remember: Life is about give-and-take.

CANCER

JUNE 21–JULY 22

No matter who you're with, be it friend or loved one, togetherness will give you true satisfaction. When someone you trust offers advice, take note. The more you open yourself up to sharing your thoughts and feelings, the better you will get to know someone.

LEO

JULY 23–AUG. 22

Money is on your radar! There is a lot happening right now, so be careful to find some career-life balance. Your workdays can be intense right now, but don't get distracted and ignore those you care about the most.

VIRGO

AUG. 23–SEPT. 22

If you are looking for love, this is the time to get out and socialize. And for couples, build new memories with your partner so they know how you feel. A meaningful discussion can be the start of transforming your life.

LIBRA

SEPT. 23–OCT. 22

Whether you are in love or currently looking, remember to enjoy the moment. Don't worry about what happens next. A career opportunity could land right at your feet, so be creative.

THE FUTURE Was Last Week

Back to the Future Day was on Oct. 21, 2015, the date when Marty McFly (Michael J. Fox) and Doc Brown (Christopher Lloyd) arrived in the future in the beloved franchise, and the pair just happened to pull their time-traveling DeLorean onstage at Jimmy Kimmel Live!, where they marveled at the futuristic smartphone to take a selfie.

NEED A BLOWOUT?

HELENA'S

HAIRY SITUATION

RELIABLY disheveled actress Helena Bonham Carter looked a bit worse for wear on Oct. 19, when she went shopping in London. To say that the Suffragette star threw together her outfit of a lace slip and smock dress would be complimentary. But what really had people gawking was her limp, wild and thinning hair that barely covered a bald spot. Maybe it's time she called up the wig masters she worked with on Harry Potter and Alice in Wonderland for a little help?

Star WEEKLY AWARDS

We round up the week's best, worst and downright strange.

* Most Committed Performance

According to Leonardo DiCaprio, his latest role, as a frontiersman in The Revenant, called for a thick skin and an even stronger stomach. "Whether it was going in and out of frozen rivers or sleeping in animal carcasses or what I ate on set," said Leo, "[these were] some of the most difficult things I've ever had to do. I certainly don't eat raw bison liver on a regular basis."

EWV!

* Creepiest Costume

Perhaps it's time to lay off the honey! Channing Tatum dressed up as Winnie the Pooh for his daughter Everly's Halloween carnival, but not everyone was a fan of his potbellied interpretation, complete with shades and a five o'clock shadow. "Pretty sure I terrified all the children," the actor admitted.

* CLASSIEST CALLOUT

Take that! Zendaya posted a comparison of images from her Modeliste magazine photo shoot after she was "shocked" to learn the mag had shrunk her waist and thighs.

WINNING?

* Angriest Ex

Hell hath no fury like a woman scorned. Charlie Sheen's ex-fiancée Brett Rossi set snapshots, love letters and mementos from their relationship ablaze in a backyard bonfire – 11 months after the actor called off their engagement.

* CUTEST KID

Apparently, Christina Aguilera's daughter Summer Rain is not a fan of country. "Oh no, not Uncle Blake [Shelton]," joked the singer's fiancé, Matt Rutler.
